Stage Set For Convention Here

Plans are progressing for the Association of Women Students state convention, which is scheduled for the EMC campus on Saturday, November 15.

The session will begin at 9:00 a.m. in Strong Science Building with a program including group discussion of college life.

The noon luncheon at McKenny Hall will feature Dr. Elizabeth Drews, a psychologist at Michigan State University, as guest speaker. Dr. Drews, who received her Ph. D. degree from the University of Michigan, was formerly director of psychological services for the city of Lansing.

An address by Miss Elaine Forkappa, regional vice president for the International Association of Women Students, is also scheduled.

Any woman may attend the conference by paying registration costs of $2.70 for the entire convention, or $2.00 for the luncheon and guest speaker.

Anyone interested in attending must make reservations with Jane Antosik of 208 King Hall by Monday, November 10.

Adahi Sets Busy Schedule

Prof. Doyne Wolfe of the Department of Foreign Languages will aid and advise the members of Adahi, the senior women's honorary, as they carry out their projects for the year.

Since its birth two years ago, Adahi has endeavored to fulfill its goal of service to the campus by ushering and hostessing at college functions. Among the proposed projects for this year is the plan to encourage the adoption of an honor system on the EMC campus. In addition, Adahi hopes to promote a Women's League — Adahi "Women's Services Room" to be used for a quiet study area, a well as a place for displays and meetings.

Adahi is composed of 13 senior women and four honorary members. Members are: Louise Fokens, president; Ruth Boyce, vice-president; Ann Waldo, secretary; Diane Clark, treasurer; Elaine Anderson, Alice Epple, Sharon Fleischmann, Marion Haboian, Josie

Student Review:

Season's First Plays Sparkle At Roosevelt

by Dick Thompson

The EMC Players presented a bill of three varied one-act plays, "Aria Da Capo," "The Happy Journey," and "The End of the Beginning," to packed houses last week at Roosevelt School Auditorium.

"Aria Da Capo" is undoubtedly one of the most difficult plays which the Players' have performed. Whether or not the play warranted the effort that the players put forth is open to debate.

Two relative newcomers to the EMC stage exhibited their talent in interpreting Edna St. Vincent Millay's lines. Lewis Pearl was a delightful and matter-of-fact clown, and Miss Karen Bosen sparkled in the role of a rather hopelessly confused Columbine.

Three EMC veteran performers held forth with the shepherd scene in this play — Joe Dennis as the masque of tragedy, Bill Dobkin as Thyrsis, and Joseph Del Giudice as Corydon. Mr. Dobkin and Mr. Del Giudice had difficult roles to portray; theirs was the task of developing speed to the extent of murder in a few rather simple actions. This feat was accomplished with their perceptive reading of the lines and their deft, precise actions.

The second play — first in interest to this reviewer—was "The Happy Journey." Thornton Wilder's aversion to scenery and props focused attention on the actors. A group of newcomers to the EMC stage were in focus along with one able veteran, Sue Burris, who took over the part of Beulah at the last possible moment and did wonders with it.

Type casting was excellent and Mr. Ronald Muchnick, the director, is to be congratulated. The actors did not depend upon stereotypes to support them although

College Seeks Loan Information From Students

EMC students will be getting a questionnaire and explanatory letter by the end of this week describing the important points of the new National Defense Education Act, (Federal Loan Program).

William C. Lawrence, Vice President for Student Affairs, said today that the college has a questionnaire from the federal goverment asking for an estimate of the number of students who might be interested in the loan program as well as the overall amount of funds needed.

He emphasized that the student questionnaire is purely informational and not an application, nor does it commit the student to apply later.

Vice President Lawrence urges prompt return of the forms by students since failure to return them would seriously handicap the college in acquiring a valid figure as to the number of interested students and the funds necessary for the loan program.

Hula Hoop Contest at Saturday Night's Dance

A Hula Hoop contest is on the agenda for the Hula Hop, an all college dance to be held in McKenny Hall from 9:00 p.m. until midnight Saturday, November 8.

Admission is free and casual dress is in order for the event, sponsored by Sigma Nu Phi sorority and Kappa Phi Alpha fraternity.

Top Pianist Will Perform at Pease

Herman Godes, described by by critics as "an outstanding pianist with a rising career." will be featured in a Community Concert Thursday, November 13, at 8:15 p.m. in Pease Auditorium.

Mr. Godes was imprisoned in a Nazi concentration camp for four years. At the close of the war, he moved to West Germany, where his concerts were well- received.

In 1950, he came to this country and studied under such teachers as Robert Casadesus and Walter Gieseking, and continued his concert career.

Student tickets for the Thursday performance may be obtained at the office of the Dean of Women.

THE OLDEST LIVING alumnus of Eastern Michigan College is Myrtle Warner Olds, shown here chatting with college president Eugene B. Elliott.

Oldest Alum Back After 78 Years

Eastern Michigan College's oldest living alumnus, Myrtle Warner Olds of the class of 1880, left by plane for Ft. Lauderdale, Florida, today after visiting in Ypsilanti with her son, Prof. Lloyd Olds, head of the Department of Physical Education.

In excellent health and spirits, "except for a touch of arthritis," Mrs. Olds keeps up with current affairs and is an interested follower—on TV—of the Detroit Lions football team. She celebrated her 96th birthday on October 3.

Yesterday, visited by Dr. Eugene B. Elliott, president of the college, Mrs. Olds recalled for him some of the early days of the school. "I was 16 when I graduated from Saline High School and enrolled here so I guess they weren't so particular in those days as they are now," she joked.

"I lived in a boarding house on Perrin Street in the days before the Normal Training School had dormitories," she remembered. "Ypsilanti was a real horse and buggy town then with no paved streets except maybe one downtown. What wonderful changes have been made over the years."

Student Reports $4.00 Theft from Dorm Room

An EMC sophomore reported to Ypsilanti police last Wednesday that a sum of money had been stolen from him.

The student said the money, amounting to $4.00, was taken from a billfold in his room in Munson Hall.

Student Expelled For Football Card Involvement Here

But Detroit Lawyer Protests Arrest

A police crackdown on alleged football card betting pools at the University of Michigan moved briefly to Ypsilanti last week with the arrest of a 19-year-old Eastern Michigan College sophomore.

David Martin was arrested at his Brown Hall dormitory room at 6:00 p.m. Thursday by Michigan State Police in co-operation with Ypsilanti city police detectives and college officials.

Campus authorities later ordered him expelled for "infringing on college policy." Martin pleaded guilty in Ann Arbor court and was released on $150 bond pending sentencing tomorrow (Friday.)

The arrest came on a warrant by Ann Arbor police. However, law enforcement officers declined to say if there was a connection between gambling activities at Eastern and the U. of M.

Meanwhile, a top Detroit city official and law authority lashed out at the arrests of Martin and seven U. of M. students.

Corporation counsel Nathaniel Goldstick said the arrested students "have been ruined for life for something that is condoned in virtually every household," according to a United Press International dispatch from Detroit.

Goldstick said the arrests wouldn't stop the gamblers for long. "Those no-good hoodlums and gamblers will be back next season to lure other youngsters into trouble," he said.

He blamed the press for being partly responsible for making "an illegal practice fully accepted by society" by printing names and making celebrities of those persons who win large sums of money in the Irish Sweepstakes.

"Each person who accepts a sweepstakes ticket or a football card is guilty of violating the state gambling laws," he stated.

Five Candidates At Party Forum

Candidates of the five parties on Tuesday's election ballot in Michigan spoke to a gathering of about 40 people last week, outlining their positions on state and national issues.

Those who took part in the forum, arranged by EMC Young Democrats, were Lewis Christman, Republican candidate for the State Senate; his Democratic Party opponent, O. Thomas Law; Ralph Muncy, of Ann Arbor, the Socialist Labor Party candidate for governor; Evelyn Sell, U. S. Senatorial candidate of the Socialist Workers Party; and Mary Kenworthy, legislative candidate of the Prohibition Party.

Topics covered by the five included their views on civil rights and integration; free medical insurance and unemployment compensation policy; and foreign policy.

Only one candidate among the five was successful in his bid for election — State Senator Lewis W. Christman, who defeated Mr. Law, his Democratic adversary.

A question and answer period followed the talks.

Editorial Duties Described

In this, the first of a series of articles by a member of the Echo staff, the duties of the editor of the paper are defined and described. Future articles will concern other staff positions.

After all material has been prepared and sent to the printer, the editor must then go to the printer on the following day and proof-read the material that has been set up in type. This is at least the second time this same material has been checked for she must also copy read the material submitted by the staff before it is ever sent to the printer.

The first time material is checked at the printer, the editor has the help of the assistant editor, the associate editor, and the sports editor. They all took over the articles as they are set up in type and printed on long strips of paper.

Because the final responsibility of the paper rests on the shoulders of the editor, she then proof-reads the entire paper after all corrections have been made. While at the printer, the editor must set up each page in the proper journalistic fashion as to the headlines, what will appear on what page, and the proper balance of this material on this page.

What takes place at the printer is but a small part of the process of printing this newspaper. Once a person is appointed to the $12.00 a week job of editor, a year of painstaking editorial effort follows. An editor is responsible for keeping tabs on happenings on campus; in addition, she must make sure that the newspaper is represented at each function. If pictures are to be taken, the photographer must be notified. If the editor finds out about a certain event but learns of it too late to notify a staff writer, she must write this article herself.

All incoming editorial mail must be read and checked for its information value to the paper. If it proves to be of a newsworthy nature, she must assign the duty of readying the information for print.

If a letter to the editor is received, it must be checked for authenticity of writer. This holds true especially if the content of the letter is of a controversial nature. If time and space permit, the editor should write her view on a subject of current importance in the form of an editorial. This might also be a follow-up of another article in the paper that the editor feels warrants more emphasis.

At the beginning of each school year, a budget must be prepared through the joint cooperation of the editor and the business manager. This is very important, for it determines how much money will be received from the college to run the newspaper. An error in estimating costs and revenues might cause the paper to be small at the end of a school year when the amount of news justifies a large paper. In line with the financial end of the paper, the editor must also assign work to be written for the paper that will not trespass upon the space needed for the income producing advertising.

The job of editor is usually filled through the ranks of the staff by advancing the assistant editor to the position.

Drama Review

their roles without exception were played with enthusiasm and a fair amount of perception. Nancy Raker, in her role of Caroline, shone like a star, despite the fact that she was a "natural" for the part. There was a special fire in her performance.

The last play was a rollicking comedy, "The End of the Beginning," which, at times, bordered on the slapstick Mack Sennett style of the twenties. It was kept from becoming a farce in the regularly accepted sense of the word through the rapid pace set by Judy Krause, and kept up throughout the sometimes rather tedious action by Mr. Saputo and Mr. Thiede.

All in all, the plays were successful in that they entertained—and that, in this reviewer's opinion, can be all which should be asked from any performance.

Letters to the Editor

Disagrees on Sports

To the Sports Editor:

I would like to suggest that your column "Huron Highlights" of the October 30 issue was completely uncalled for and certainly disheartening to the Eastern Michigan football players and coaching staff.

What you termed too "redundant" to even write about was one of the better football games played by the Huron squad this season. True, they were defeated. Still, a squad can look very good in defeat and so the Eastern squad did that day. They had mental lapses and it was these which beat us, but any team will have these, especially if the squad is inexperienced and excited as they were that day.

May I point out to you, Bill, that it was necessary for the team to play "heads-up" ball to force the SIU squad into a last minute four-point victory. The Southern squad has much more native talent than does the Eastern Michigan contingent. The Salukis are fast, alert and a top power in the always tough IIAC. It certainly was no disgrace to lose to a team such as that.

It is true that we have a sub-par offense this year, at least compared to the unit witnessed last season. But let's check into the reasons before criticizing their operations. The entire 1957 starting backfield was lost — including Kerry Keating, who scored 15 touchdowns last season and gained 563 yards rushing; fullback Tom McCormick, who scored three T.D.s and gained 311 yards rushing; Dale Nicholas, who scored 48 points and gained 465 rushing; and topnotch quarterback Bill Ameel, who did a tremendous job guiding the squad last season. In all, this foursome gained some 1345 yards and scored 153 of our 237 total points for the season. This was the work of four backfield men; four men who were lost at the end of the season. Could this possibly be one answer to our offensive problem?

Now, let's take the replacements. True, as you stated John Malone took over the fullback spot and, I believe he has done a good job. He has carried 81 times and has gained some 275 yards rushing. He has scored three touchdowns for 18 points. Not tops, but still a good output. He cannot haul the load alone. Working beside him are Gerald Wedge, who had never seen halfback action until this season. You may remember that he player second string quarterback in 1957. Gerry has carried 58 times this year for 238 yards. Jack Gerson is at the other half. Jack saw only minor action last season, his first with the Hurons. He has carried 62 times for 210 yards rushing, not bad for a 148 pound halfback. Sophomore John Kubiak is working at quarterback this year, backed by Dave Longridge. Kubiak saw only minor action last season and it is a big step to take over a starting role, as he has done this year. John is, of course, backed by Dave Longridge who saw no action last season, but joined the team only during the 1958 spring football session.

Can we expect top quality work from two men who have seen so little action with the team? I, seriously doubt it. Another question: is this backfield combination one that can be expected to produce in good comparison to the 1957 contingent? Can this be the reason for our spotty offensive work? I believe it is 90 per cent of the reason.

Another thing you forgot to mention is that the Eastern Michigan coaching staff is working with completely unsubsidized material, something practically unheard of in college football today. We are competing against teams that use, in my opinion, a good deal of subsidization. We have done all right thus far, but it is beginning to catch up with us. Eastern may not see another championship football team for years to come unless we can prove to prospective athletes that there is more to a good education than subsidized athletics. This, believe it or not, is becoming more and more difficult to do. Do you think it is "fun" to play against hired football players? It can become downright dangerous. So, Bill, I believe that prior to writing any more articles like the one appearing last week, you should talk to a few people connected with the football squad.

Sincerely yours,
Bill Jones

'Thanks For Support'

To the Editor:

Speaking for the actives and pledges of Alpha Epsilon Pi Fraternity, Epsilon Mu Colony, we would like to express our thanks for the support given to us in our drive to raise funds for the United Foundation by shining shoes in McKenny Hall.

Without the Cooperation given to us by the faculty and student body, our drive never would have succeeded as it did. This being our first undertaking in a job of this type, we encountered a few difficulties, but with the help of Dean Crane and the members of the various Greek organizations we were able to do our small part in helping this drive reach its goal.

So again, I would like to express our deep thanks to the staff and student body of Eastern Michigan College.

Eastern Has Fun! Whip NI Huskies 15-7

by Jerry Levin and Ken Balcoff

The Eastern Michigan Hurons recovered from their loss to Southern Illinois last week and grabbed a 15-7 victory over a much improved Northern Illinois team.

The touted Huron defense held the Huskies to 80 yards rushing and 20 yards through the air. Allen Eck, rated by the NCAA as the number two small college pass receiver across the nation, was held to a meager four yards in that department. His sparkling 60 yard punt return in the third quarter accounted for his team's only score and also compensated, somewhat, for his anemic pass receiving.

The Huron offense outgained the Huskies, while grinding out 239 yards on the ground. The top ground gainers were Day and Wedge, who recorded over half of the Huron yardage. Notable also was Brian Dunn's 31 yard run for the first Eastern tally.

Quarterback John Kubiak completed four passes in nine attempts for 92 yards. One, a 40 yard pass to Bill Yanis, coupled with a 28 yard run by Al Day moved the ball to the Northern three. Day then cracked into the end zone to register the second touchdown for EMC. Dave Longridge added three more points on a 15 yard field goal to end the scoring for the afternoon.

Bright spots for the future in the persons of some promising sophomores are: Dave Longridge, John Kubiak at quarterback and Bill Yanis, Gary Dode at the ends; all speak well for the building of a powerful passing attack.

We were also impressed by the marked improvement of our marching band which displayed more spirit and versatility last weekend than in previous half time shows. We hope this will be indicative of future performances.

Munson Tennis Champ

Herbert Brown won the Munson Hall Tennis Championship last week by defeating Bill Rodgers. Brown, a freshman from Oak Park, won the match by scores of 6-4, 8-6. Rodgers, a senior from St. Clair Shores, must be content with the second place finish as his acme.

Volleyball Tourney

On Wednesday, October 29, the annual inter-class volleyball championship play-offs, representing over 400 students from the classes of freshmen physical education W0I for women, were held on the outdoor courts east of Bowen fieldhouse.

Eight teams, winners in their individual class sections, competed in a single elimination tournament. Excitement and enthusiasm was high as the players from Miss Grill's, Mrs. William's, and Miss Wixom's groups fought hard.

The players that finally emerged the Grand Champions included: Nancy Zoller, Janet Gaves, Yvonne Fuselier, Sue White, Terry Dolengo, Kay McClure, and Thomasine Mc Fadden.

Al Day

The most descriptive term for Al is "all-around athlete." At present, Day is one of Eastern's hard charging fullbacks. A graduate of Pershing High School in Detroit, Al received awards almost too numerous to mention. Among his honors are All-city football and track selections; honorable mention in an all-state football poll; outstanding East side athlete in 1954; and his selection as captain of the Pershing track team during his senior year.

This 20 year old senior is one of Eastern's hardest runners to stop and is a good solid blocker. Despite his size, at 6'2" and 215 pounds, (leading some to think Al cumbersome) Day combines good speed and crushing power in order to maintain an almost four yard per carry average.

A Natural Science and Physical Education major, Al's hobby is

by Paul Will

EMC's cross country team journeys to the IIAC meet in Mt. Pleasant this Saturday in hopes of recapturing the conference title, which the Hurons lost for the first time last year.

According to Coach George Marshall, "This should be one of the best cross country meets in IIAC history. There are four outstanding teams, Central Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Northern Illinois, and Western Illinois, and they will all have a chance to get the championship. Eastern can place anywhere form first to fourth."

On paper, Eastern appears to have the necessary potential for victory, although the other teams are all strong. Thus far in meets with conference teams Eastern has downed both Central and Northern. So far, Western Illinois is undefeated, while Northern Illinois, the defending IIAC champions, has lost to both Eastern and Western.

EMC has an advantage over the other teams because, whereas the Hurons usually run a four mile race, the IIAC course is only three and three-quarters miles long; the Illinois schools are use to running only three miles.

Outstanding runners in the conference this year include: John Flamer of Southern Illinois, Ed VanderHeuval from Central Michigan, Eastern's Mauri Jormakka, Dan Ryan from Western Illinois, and Dave Stern and Dick Townsend of Northern Illinois. A close battle for first place between these men is expected.

Jormakka, who is starting his first year of cross country competition, is Eastern's best runner so far. In the last home meet he set a new course record. Coach Marshall remarked that Gurney Beach, Doug Carroll, Mauri Jormakka, Howard Reindel, and Don Taylor are the first five probable finishers for Eastern.

Huron Highlights

by . . . . Bill Forster

Recently, the Sports Publicist of Eastern Michigan College issued a release stating that a major consideration at the fall meeting of the Interstate Intercollegiate Athletic Conference will be the proposed program of athletic subsidization. On the basis of past decisions, Eastern Michigan officials will probably vote against any form of subsidy program.

Looking in retrospect, the rest of the league (with two remotely possible exceptions) is just as likely to pass on a subsidization program as EMC officials are to refute one. The two schools in doubt are Eastern Illinois, which along with EMC made up the two negative votes last year, and Western Illinois, which due to a recent change in administration has an unclear policy.

You may ask, "Just what does this mean to the student at Eastern Michigan College?" It means that if this program succeeds over the refusal of the Huron officials (and many of those "in the know" think it will) Eastern Michigan might as well settle down to a position of dormancy if she expects to remain in the IIAC. A good indication of what happens to a school that refuses to recruit when others in its conference do recruit athletes is the athletic downfall of the University of Chicago in the Big Ten (an always overly athletic-conscious conference) shown in that fine institution's last years as a member.

The typical Eastern Michigan student is not one to become ecstatic via an over-abundance of descriptive adjectives illustrating the capabilities of one of the Eastern athletic organizations. Nevertheless, I am quite sure that this same student would become quite irascible if informed that the institution of his choice was to become the athletic "weak-sister" of a mediocre conference, which the IIAC presently is.

There has been some speculation that EMC will apply for admittance into the President's Conference if a vote of "yes" is the outcome of the subsidization decision at the league meeting. From this corner, the idea seems an extremely good, although not new, one. The reason for this statement is that if Eastern is going to attempt to be advertised as an insitution promoting simply education and no other facet of college life, that is the only solution.

However, let it be said in finality as a hint to the "great fathers" of EMC, that whether on a program of athletic emphasis or deemphasis, no one is impressed with a habitual loser (which will very evidently be the outcome if Eastern refuses to subsidize while the rest of the league does). Thus, let's face reality and either vote for subsidization or resign from the IIAC with its athletic "growing-pains."

Hurons Face Western Illinois In Battle for Survival In IIAC

by Jerry Smoot

The Leathernecks of Western Illinois University will be greeted by the Hurons this weekend in what may prove the season's battle for survival for both teams.

Western, who is now tied for second place with Southern Illinois, still has strong hopes for the conference title. They maintain a conference record of three wins and one loss, losing only to Southern.

Their squad is expected to be very strong, being led by halfbacks Leroy Jackson, a freshman from Chicago Heights, and Larry Garron. Garron, in the game against Eastern Illinois two weeks ago, carried for approximately 90 yards rushing, while Jackson added another 80 yards to constitute one half of the team's 341 yards rushing. The former has, thus far, carried the ball over sixty times this season and has averaged nearly six yards per carry, while the latter has carried almost fifty times and has averaged 6.5 per carry.

On the other hand, our Hurons, now rated twelfth defensively in the nation among small colleges, will be out to cut the averages of those two men as much as possible.

Expected to see much action for the Hurons this coming weekend will be fullback Brian Dunn, who scored his first T.D. of the season in last week's game on a 35-yard jaunt over his own center, and Gerry Wedge, who has looked very good running from the right half position. Other Hurons to see much action are Jack Gerson, who is continuing to improve at left half, and John Kubiak—Trosko's hope for the future in the quarterback spot.

Eastern will need to win this game in order to stay in contention for a second place finish in the IIAC. A loss would shove them into the depths of fourth, or even fifth place in the conference.

the listening to and collecting of jazz records. At the present time, Al has evaded both women and the armed services. He is an active member of Kappa Alpha Psi social fraternity.

Fred Kessler

One of Eastern's big, tough linemen, Fred is 6'3" and 200 pounds of solid football tackle. A graduate of Ypsilanti Central and an ex-Marine Fred is perhaps the bulwark of the Huron line.

While attending high school Kessler was voted all-league tackle, honorable mention all-state tackle, and was elected captain of the football team as a senior.

Fred is married and has one daughter. He is 26 years old and is a Physical Education major. Kessler claims that this is one of the best teams in Eastern's history, and with five points taken away from the opponents and given to the Hurons we would have a champion. He believes that co-operation and determination have accounted for the teams four wins thus far.

Fred's good hard blocking and savage tackling make him a tough man to handle both offensively and defensively. Kessler will be sorely missed by the Hurons about September-time next year.

Taking part with the college band will be the 41-member Ypsilanti High Girls' Drum and Bugle Corps, who will play "Bonnie Lassie," traditional Scottish folk song, and both perform and play an authentic Highland Fling with bagpipe accompaniment.

58 Watercolors Displayed Now at Campus Gallery

Fifty-eight watercolors of the Michigan Water Color Society Traveling Show will be on display at the Eastern Michigan College gallery in the Arts Building beginning Monday, November 3.
